Legislative Update Week Eighteen

Negotiations continue between the House, Senate and Governor's office on key issues that need to be resolved in order to adjourn the 2021 legislative session.

This week there was no floor action in either chamber and limited committee action to put bills in the appropriate place in the process in anticipation of the pending compromise on issues related to taxes, mental health funding and child care.

We anticipate the House and Senate will meet again in person next week to begin the final work on budget and policy for the year, but this is far from certain.

We will share an update when there is news to share. Stay tuned.

Matt and Kate are highly trained and prepared for this phase of session, though...
